

Where is India, the World's Largest Democracy, Headed?

Thursday, March 7th, 2024

8 am EST / 2 pm CET / 6:30 pm IST

As India gears up for the May elections, the prevailing sentiment suggests Narendra Modi's reelection is imminent, reaffirming his statesmanship and aspirations for great-power status. However, beneath the surface lies a historic narrative of political and cultural pluralism being overshadowed by the populist majoritarian ideology. This online roundtable aims to dissect the implications of Modi's triumphalism, the erosion of India's federal system, and how will this impact India's international aspirations.

Speakers

Ananya Vajpeyi
Centre for the Study of Developing Societies

Mujibur Rehman
Jamia Millia Islamia

Chair

Nicola Missaglia
ISPI (Italian Institute for International Political Studies)